Before You Begin

All the bracelets presented in this book are made with Miyuki Delica 11/0 beads. These beads produce a fine and very even weave. They are about 1.27 mm tall and 2 mm wide.

Each color reference is accompanied by a sample of the corresponding shade, but a flat color swatch can never exactly reproduce the changing nuances of these Miyuki Delica beads. For this reason, we suggest you refer to the photo color chart opposite before making a bracelet. However, you are free to choose other colors: there are more than 700!

Miyuki Delica 11/0 beads are sold in packets of 5 or 8 grams, depending on the color. A packet of 8 grams contains about 1,400 beads. For a bracelet that will be 16 x 5 cm (6½ x 2 in.), you'll need about 3,150 beads—that is, a little more than two 8-gram packets.

You can, of course, opt for seed beads. As an example, 8 grams of Miyuki 11/0 seed beads is about 700 beads. However, you should note that the effect obtained will be different and the length and width of the bracelet will increase.

To start out, you will need a beading loom large enough to weave the cuffs (minimum 36 notches for 36 warp strands of 35 beads). To make the bracelets in this book, we used the wooden loom below, which has 84 notches.

For weaving, we recommend Fil One-G 0.25 mm beige nylon beading thread. A 45-meter (49-yard) bobbin will make about two cuffs. The beige color is more subtle than white and makes the best background for multicolored bead weavings. You will also need a beading needle and a pair of tweezers for picking up the tiny Miyuki Delica beads. Finally, if you want to attach finishings to your woven bracelets, you'll need a tube of jewelry glue and a pair of jewelry-making pliers.

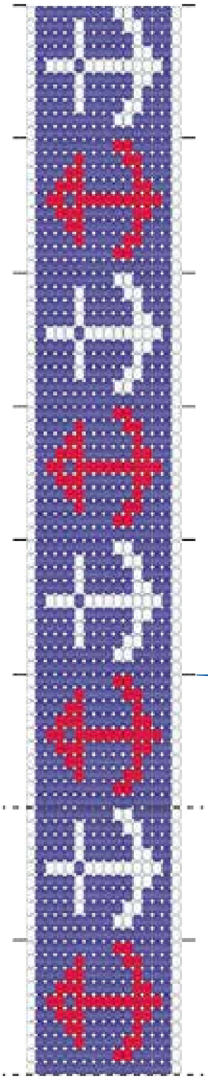
Weaving Technique

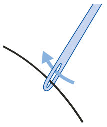
1 Cut the warp strands and put them in place, adding one strand more than the number of beads for each row. For example, if the pattern is 35 beads wide, you'll need 36 strands of warp.

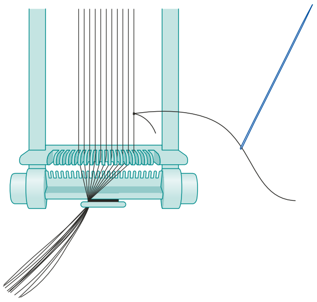
2 Cut about 2 meters (2 yards) of thread for the needle.

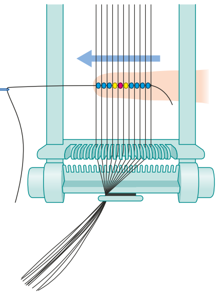
3 Turn the book so you can read each diagram vertically; this makes it easier to work. To help you, reference marks are given every 10 beads. In addition, when a project has a repeating pattern, the pattern to repeat is marked off with dotted lines.



4 Thread the beading needle with the 2 meters (2 yards) of thread. Attach the end of the thread to the first warp strand with a double knot.

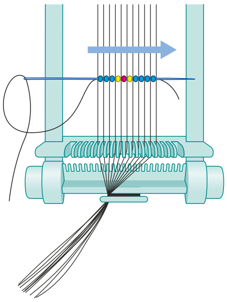


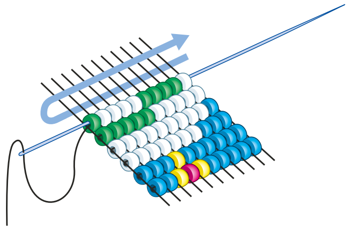




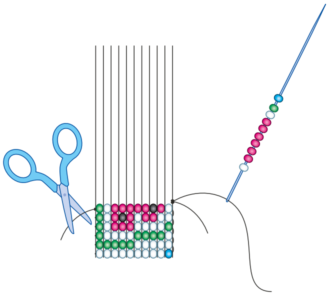
5 In the example shown here, the bracelet is 10 beads wide. Thread the 10 beads on the needle and then place the beads under the warp strands. Use your index finger to help you position the beads between the warp strands.

6 Insert the needle through the beads, making sure that it passes above the warp strands. Tighten the thread to hold the beads firmly between the warp strands by pulling hard on the needle.



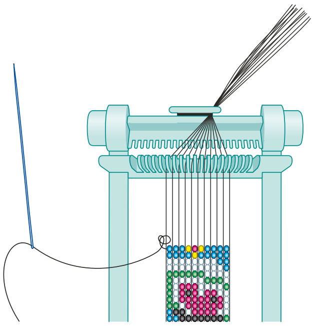


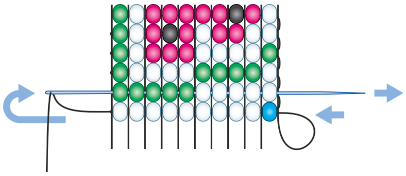
7 ▸ On each row, the needle thread will do a forward pass and a return pass through the beads, first going under the warp strands, and then over.



8 ▸ If the needle thread is not long enough, make two small knots on the first warp strand. Send the thread through the last row of beads again and cut the thread. Attach a new piece of needle thread as in step 4.

9 ▸ Once the weaving is finished, make a double knot with the needle thread on the last warp strand.





10 ▸ To fasten off the work, thread one warp strand through the needle and pass it through the last row and then the next-to-last row of beads. Bring the needle again through the beads of the last row, bringing it out in the center of the row. Repeat for each warp strand. If you have too many warp strands to fit comfortably through full rows of beads, run the strand through only two beads of each row at a time, changing the beads you weave through for each warp strand.

There are many ways you can finish a piece:

- You can braid the warp strands.
- You can fasten off the warp strands with a crimp bead.
- You can thread the warp strands through one or several beads and then knot them.
- You can knot the warp strands right away and then hide them in a bead with a large hole.
- Finally, you can (as shown on the bracelets in this book) glue the bead weavings onto metal bracelets or add crimp ends to each end of the piece using a pair of flat jewelry-making pliers. Apply glue to the insides of the crimp ends to ensure that the piece will be held securely, and be careful not to crimp them so hard you crush the beads. Next, add jump rings, clasps, or even extension chains.
